Schedule 26 Statutory Supervisor Course

RTO No: 45790

Nationally recognised units of competency

BSBWHS414 - Contribute to WHS risk management

BSBWHS411 - Implement and monitor WHS policies, procedures and programs

This course introduces essential risk management principles and practical strategies to help learners develop the skills and knowledge required to identify hazards, assess risks, implement suitable control measures, and review their effectiveness.

Part 10.7A of the Work Health and Safety (Mines) Regulations 2022 outlines the statutory positions required within mining operations. These positions are appointed by the mine operator to perform designated duties and responsibilities associated with the safe and effective operation of a mine.

Statutory roles are divided into a range of categories, each with specific responsibilities, competency requirements, levels of experience, and qualification standards. Certain positions may also require the holder to obtain a statutory certificate.

This course has been developed to meet the WHS risk management training requirements for the following statutory positions:

- Underground supervisor (non-coal)
- Underground supervisor (coal)
- Restricted quarry manager
- Statutory supervisor
- Mine air quality officer
- Noise officer
- Electrical supervisor
